

Claim

I claim the " DispoTop ", plastic disposable trashcan top as my idea and invention. Because I have been in the positions of the discussed circumstances which were described previously and not having a resolution for the problem myself, I thought of this solution, the plastic disposable trashcan top, namely the " DispoTop ". Nowhere to be found anywhere is there anything which has been made for the purposes for which my invention has been developed. There is nowhere on the market nor has there ever been on the market, a product which claims to provide the solutions to the problems that my invention will be able to provide. My invention was specifically developed to address these beforesaid problems and situations. I have looked around at topless trashcans where birds and wild animals have turned them, over eating its' contents, consequently from the tops of trashcans being blown away in the wind ( even my own ) or missing for some reason. I've seen flies swarm around topless trashcans and have smelled the stench. I've seen boxed items for charities sitting out in the rain with no covers. Week after week the same topless trashcans are set out on trash pickup days and no sign of a remedy. On rainy days or snowstorms these topless trashcans get filled with rain or snow because there is no cover for them. I've seen no TV commercials nor advertisements of any kind addressing the problems nor solutions to the problems of which my invention will resolve. I have stated before that through my own experiences, truthfully all of these problems I have at some time encountered which caused me to try to think of some solution to the problem since there was none available.

As for the other uses, I have not seen or found anything to purchase for myself any " plastic surface cover " with an elastic opening that would cover and hold onto securely certain items to keep them from being damaged or even just to cover for short term storage times.

For these reasons I claim sole ownership of my invention because of it uniqueness and novelty.
